1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the theoretical aspects of the problem. It is shown that the problem is equivalent to a problem in the theory of differential equations. The main result of this part is the theorem that the problem has a unique solution if the initial conditions are satisfied. The proof of this theorem is given in the next section.

2. In the second part of the paper, the problem is solved for a specific case. It is shown that the solution is given by the formula $y = \frac{1}{2} \log \frac{1+x}{1-x}$. This formula is derived from the general theory by substituting the specific values of the parameters. The result is verified by substituting it back into the original equation.
